

Musselburgh Archer Arrow Trail

THE MUSSELBURGH ARCHER is a public artwork, located by the Roman Bridge on the east bank of the River Esk, celebrating the rich heritage of Musselburgh.

Created by artists Svetlana Kondakova and Maja Quille, the life size figure represents layers of local history including the Roman invasion in AD 80, the battle of Pinkie Cleugh in 1547, and the Musselburgh Silver Arrow, dating back to 1603.

The bronze artwork is accompanied by a series of stainless steel arrows installed at locations around Musselburgh, forming a trail around the town, to areas of cultural, historical, natural and community significance.

The artwork was funded by Tesco Ltd and was commissioned by East Lothian Council. The artwork was selected by a working group comprising Musselburgh Area Partnership, Musselburgh and Inveresk Community Council, Musselburgh Conservation Society, local people from the community, East Lothian Council officers and elected members. The artwork project was managed by East Lothian Council's Arts Service.
