Hi

We have not provided any undertakings that the letter will not be issued to third parties. This has already been provided to the provider themselves although sending this letter out to COSLA could be viewed in similar manner to that of the parent's letter.

I do not necessarily see an impediment in sending this off to [redacted] but it would largely depend on how much trust you can place on undertaking not to share. It certainly would enable support to come forward and perhaps it is something we could ask [redacted] at the consultation.

Subject: COSLA

Hi

I have just taken a call from [redacted] at COSLA. [redacted] was offering his support to us with our ongoing situation. He has been updated by SG but wasn't aware of the latest developments. The reason for his call is that he has had an approach from NDNA (National Day Nurseries Association) who were wondering if they and COSLA could help broker a way forward. After I updated him on the details he agreed that would not be appropriate. He has asked if he could see the provider letter on a strictly confidential basis and only for his information. Can you advise on whether this would be appropriate?

Kind regards,
